

Bach

mod: 1175
design by Davide Angheleddu

A series of tubes that recall the pipes of an organ make up the Bach umbrella holder with an original and evocative design. It is very practical because the 'pipes' are in plastic which means that the umbrellas are not damaged and the small foldup umbrellas can easily be put in the centre of the stand. The black base is made of steel and has a conical shape with a high rim to hold the water that drips from the wet umbrellas.

Pictures

Dimensions

