

Amazon

mod: 2490
design by Ewald Winkelbauer

The Amazon Cuckoo clock, designed by Ewald Winkelbauer, appears, as its name suggests, immersed in the Amazonian forest, from which it emerges every hour to sing and chime the time. Its parallelepiped, sharp-edged structure and essential design make it a modern piece that is well suited to any environment. It is available in three colors: white, black and metallized brown with a material effect. Made from wood and painted with non-toxic paints. The high-quality German-design cuckoo movement is powered by two batteries, and it contains a photosensitive sensor that stops it from making a sound when it is dark, while a keypad allows you to adjust the intensity of the sound or turn it off altogether.
